GENERAL INFORMATION

This system is an Okinawan hard fist style under the direction of Grandmaster Dan Tosh, 10th Degree Blackbelt. Grandmaster Dan Tosh has been training since 1958 and is a member of several martial arts hall of fames. He was a contributing editor for Karate Illustrated Magazine and wrote the column, "The Voice of Tradition."

This system is defensive, never offensive. The student will learn technique, katas (forms), traditional kumité (sparring), self-discipline and control.

Tosh's Academy has several high ranking adult instructors and assistants teaching the various classes. This dojo (training hall) is the world headquarters of WOSKKA and skilled martial artists continue to evolve from it.

There are several classes available and everyone of all ages is invited to attend. We do not push the student and they do not compete with anyone but themselves. Attitude & humility are combined to create a self-confident, pleasant and well adjusted individual.

A variety of classes are available to students of all ages.

KARATE NI SENTE' NASHII! (There is no first attack in Karate!)
